Anti smoking measures taken on the island of Guernsey - can legislation and ring fence funding make a difference?

Ms Gerry Grange, Assistant Health Promotion Officer, Guernsey

In 1996 the parliament of the island of Guernsey agreed to implement a package of measures designed to help islanders stop smoking and to make smoking less attractive - particularly to young people.

This paper describes the measures taken and the current smoking levels of the local population.

Including the schools and community programmes, mass media initiatives, policy issues, evaluation and survey results.
